

EtchWood[®]

For when the details matter most...

We realize there are some things in our community that haven't changed a whole lot over the years. The sound of hoof beats as a horse pulls a buggy down a quiet country road on a summer evening, or the crowing of a rooster waking up the countryside early in the morning. Or the sealing of a business deal with a nod and a word quietly spoken. Things like hard work, a sound business ethic, and a caring attitude... These are things that everyone knows shouldn't change over any length of time.

Our company team works hard to keep things the same that should never change. But we also recognize that changes do come, and that tools and methods of production should and do improve over time.

As such improvements in tools and methods happen, they leave an imprint upon the products they produce. And throughout the years of constant change, such an impression has been left upon things made of wood.

For as long as people have been building things, wood has been a favorite design material. It's still that way.

While woodworking methods have always been changing, the basic heritage of working with wood remains the same. From the ax, the adz, the hand saw and planer, to the most modern woodworking tools of today, each method rested upon the shoulders of that generation of tools which came before it.

EtchWood's artisan-crafted styles of wood bring a unique element of timeless tradition blended with the workmanship methods of each different era into your own home or commercial project. We've combined traditional craftsmanship with the efficiency and cost-saving methods of modern production. Thus bringing to you a lightweight, strong, wood material that is long-lasting, easy to install, and always captures the essence and beauty of a certain era of wood workmanship.

And always, along with our customers, we value and appreciate the ageless gift of actual wood.

Miter Lock

*The heft and feel of a well-worn handle,
The sight of shavings that curl from a blade;
The logs in the woodpile, the sentiment of huge beams in an old-fashioned house;
The smell of fresh cut timber and the pungent
fragrance of burning leaves;
The crackle of kindling and the hiss of burning logs.
Abundant to all the needs of man, how poor the world would be Without wood.*
